Cultural Connections: Did you know?

Smudging is a traditional ceremony practiced by various First Nations and Indigenous peoples, involving the burning of sacred herbs like sage, sweetgrass, cedar, and sometimes tobacco. Smudging is not a religious practice, but rather an opportunity to ground ourselves in a positive way for each day.

ATTENTION ADVISORS:

Don't forget to attend your morning advisor/team captain meeting! Please ensure your team does not take ANY electronic devices with them to training day! Don't forget to check out the guest tours this week. Sign up for one...or all of them!

ALL ABOUT ALBERTA

Alberta's forested public lands cover over half the province – roughly 35 million hectares. That's about the size of Germany!

YESTERDAY'S HIGHLIGHTS

What a busy day! Between arrivals, team check-in, team photos, and the opening ceremonies, it was a full day for students, advisors, guests, staff and volunteers. The opening ceremony was absolutely amazing and, as usual, the trading session was full of energy and new friendships. Thanks to all for making the first day of the NCF-Envirothon a memorable one. Have a wonderful week, everyone. Good luck!!

DID YOU KNOW?

Water that melts from the glaciers of the Columbia Icefield actually flows into 3 separate oceans: the Pacific, Atlantic, and Arctic. The rivers that carry the icefields' water are freshwater sources for millions of North Americans. That's some VERY important water!!

TODAY'S TIP

QUICK
TIPS

Today's tip is about working as a team to learn and prep for the week. Teamwork is key, so learn together to help gain as much information as possible.
